Understanding
reproductive biology is centrally
important to the way many of the world's conservation
problems should be tackled. Currently the extinction
problem is huge,

with up to 30% of the world's fauna being expected to disappear in the next 50 years.

Nevertheless, it has been estimated that the global population of animals in zoos encompasses 12,000 - 15,000 species, and we anticipate that every effort will be made to preserve these species for as long as possible, minimizing inbreeding effects and providing the best welfare standards available. Even if the reproductive biology community cannot solve the global biodiversity crisis for all wild species, we should do our best to maintain important captive populations. Reproductive biology in this context is much more than the development of techniques for helping with too little or too much breeding. While

Acces PDF 2009
